Someone notified me that you have stolen my original art and are selling it on bottle caps at <http://www.m3girldesigns.com/>.

Please remove my designs from your collection IMMEDIATELY. You can't just go around stealing using art that you find on the internet and using it for your own profit. Hopefully it's just ignorance on your part, and not outright theft. There is plenty of art you can purchase, either through clip art sites, or, better yet, by commissioning artists to make designs for your use.

Please remove the floral recycle sign and the pink plaid recycle sign from your collection. Again, they are not free to use, they are not clip art, they are my original designs, and I want them removed ASAP.

In case you need to confirm which art I'm talking about, you can see them for sale in my Cafepress store at the links below:

Now that I've investigated the extent of which you've been selling my art for your own personal profit, we will be speaking to a copyright attorney about legal action. All of my art must be removed from your web site as well as your partner retail stores immediately.

Please confirm you have received these e-mails so we can come to a quick and easy resolution to this matter.
